These two sisters win the record for longest silent treatment ever with a feud that started in the early 1940s and lasted for over a half century.

The issue started when they were both nominated for an Academy Award and little sister (and newcomer to Hollywood) Joan walked away with the Oscar.

Olivia won hers five years later, but the damage was done. It wasn't until Joan's death in Dec of 2013 that the hatchet was finally buried for good.

Nowadays it's hard to find a photo of these celeb sisters without smiles, but there was a time when rivalry threatened their happy relationship. Ashlee came into the music scene four years after her older sister and penned "Shadow," a song that hinted at years of feeling jealousy and neglect as her sister rose to fame.

Since then, both shared experiences of coping with divorces, tabloid slams and navigating celebrity motherhood which brought them back together again.

They have faced off on the court on multiple occasions; both have been ranked the World #1 champion at some point in their careers – and when they're not facing off, they almost always watch each other's games.
